

THE SAINTS

by Luke Barnes

The Saints was first performed on 5 August 2014 as part of the Art at the Heart festival at Nuffield Playing Field in Guildhall Square, Southampton. Nuffield Playing Field was built by Assemble Architects. The festival was supported by The Sackler Foundation, Arts Council England and Southampton City Council.

Kenny Glynn is the world's biggest Saints fan. He is infatuated with Emily and is desperate to take her out. She is bemused by his forthright approach and keeps rejecting him because he's a bit too weird for her liking but he's very persistent and won't take no for an answer.

KENNY – TEENS (UK)

I like your hair.

I like your nose as well.

I drank a whole pint of milk and threw up on the floor yesterday.

I er ... I ...

I love you. I'm gonna be a footballer one day and I'm gonna need a WAG. Can we get married and have babies and one day I can take you on a holiday to France and we can sit in a tent and kiss all day and share a toothbrush and have sex?

Let's start.

(To audience or to himself.)

There is no worse combination than standing at a party with your trousers down, thirty kids and a clown laughing at your willy and your mum walking in to tell you your father's died.

Nothing will ever go worse than this.

(Back to the girl.)

I've been thinking about you giving me the party bag, it was really nice. I've been thinking about it loads and now Dad's dead I just thought I should say all the things I want to in case I never get to say them. I wanted to say thank you and wanted to ask you ...
